Lore Items Concepts and Specs – Myth of the peaceful village of Demons and Humans: The origins of Demon Fusion

The concept behind this lore item is an OLD TOME containing the MYTH about a PEACEFUL VILLAGE OF DEMONS AND HUMANS and the legendary POWER OF BONDS. It is a written documentation of an ancient WELSCAR myth about a village of Demons and Humans during the times of the GREAT DEMON WAR and their power to FUSE TOGETHER. Information piled together from multiple sources into one tome discussing this particular lesser known legend among the people of Welscar. Very much like one of those LORE BOOKS in Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim, but includes a lot of speculation and conjecture. This lore item is one of the Tome items the player can collect throughout the game and read once they have gotten it.

During the 1000-year Great Demon War, a sizable amount of Demons and Humans in Welscar became tired of the war. Rather than keep on fighting, these people would rather live in peace. But their fellow demons and people of L'MENA hated the other, and wouldn't stop until other side was dead.

Gathering from many different accounts, there is much speculation and conjecture on the exact origins and specifications of this mythological village of Demon and Human.

There are a few ways How this village came about in myths:

- A human saved a demon?
- A demon saved a human?
- A human or demon fell in love with a demon or human?
- Separate groups of peaceful humans and demons came together and formed a village?
- A group of peace-loving humans and demon amassed together and decided to form a village?
- A group of demons ruling over a village decided to live with the human villagers peacefully?
- Etc.

There variations and conjecture on the myth that the village either:

- Lived together in a close-knit community, supporting one another
- Lived in community where one group was superior or ruled over the other
- Etc.

Write your own variation(s) of how the village started or how it functioned as your own variation of the myth, and use it as an example of one of the many variations

No matter the truth of this mythological village, one thing in all the variations and tales of this peaceful village, was the bond and desire to protect one another no matter what world they came from. This BOND between pairs of demons and humans grew so strong, that they drew strength and power from one another.

In all versions of the myths, the ending has:

- Great Alliance and Demon Empire learn of village existence

- Representing a faction of peace, both the Great Alliance and Demon Empire detested the very existence of the village
- Both sides branded the village as traitors, and attacked it
- Working together, villagers defended the village
- Eventually, both the Great Alliance and Demon Empire worked together to form an army to destroy the village
- The village was outmatched and outnumbered, but as all was lost, the human and demon defenders with the strongest bond in the village achieved a new power
- Through their bond, they combined their magic and fused together into a single powerful form like none ever seen
- Using this new power together in their new form, the pair defeated the attacking army and defended the village
